Course Description

Comparative politics is the study of the differences and similarities in political institutions and behavior in countries around the world. This course is an introduction to both the concepts and ideas within comparative politics and research on the subject. Throughout the semester, we will look at numerous subjects relating to politics within countries around the world and how those politics vary along numerous dimensions. Our core question will relate to political institutions -- rules and structures that govern political behaviour. Specifically, we will analyze whether the extent to which these institutions influence political behavior and vice versa. Thus, the primary objective of this course is for students to develop an understanding of and ability to analyze research in comparative politics.

A secondary goal of the class is to develop writing and basic research skills through assignments that supplement the traditional exam structure. Students will be asked to give succinct presentations on certain weeks' readings as a way of opening discussion on the subject and to generate a writing assignment based on an interview with an individual who was born and lived a major part of their life in another country and the theories we have reviewed in class. These assignments will reinforce communication, interview and research skills that have broad applications to careers beyond that of the traditional political science major.

Assignments

Exams

The course will include both a midterm exam and a final exam. Both will be take-home prompts in essay format. They will be posted on the after Modules 7 and 14 of class and be due at midnight a week after posting.

Students will be asked to apply the theories and cases they learned about in class and contribute with novel analysis of the subject. Grading will be on a relative scale: your highest scoring exam will be worth 30% of your grade, your lowest will be worth 20%. The final exam will only require coverage of information from the second half of the course -- although bringing in materials from the first half is encouraged.

Writing Assignment

Students will be asked to develop a writing assignment throughout the quarter that involves an important aspect of comparative politics: field work. Since Central Florida is a diverse place with many people from other backgrounds, it is a good opportunity to learn about political systems in other parts of the world. The assignment requires choosing one theme which we have covered at any point in the course (may be an article or an entire week) and a country. Students will be asked to interview another person that was born in and spent a substantial part of their lives in that country. Using evidence from the interview, students will be asked to apply a theory relating to their chosen theme to the evidence they have gathered and evaluate the effectiveness of that theory in their chosen country.

Papers should be at least 7 pages (before citations), 12-point Times New Roman font and use in-text citations. Students are required to consult with me through either e-mail or in office hours before proceeding with their topic. Please see rubric for detailed requirements.

Papers MUST have in-text citations. Papers are due Thursday, April 18 at 11:59pm to WebCourses.

Topic Approval

Topics for the writing assignment MUST be submitted for approval by March 11 at 11:59 PM for full credit to my e-mail: konstantin.ash@ucf.edu. This should include your research question, the reading(s) whose theories you will be testing through your interview, the interview subject's basic biographical information and some possible interview questions. You lose one point from your assignment grade for every day that the topic is late. If revisions are needed, students are required to consult with me in person or over Skype to develop their topic.

Discussion Participation

Discussion threads will be posted for each week's readings and lectures at 6pm on Friday and open until noon the following Monday. Details on how credit for each posting is distributed is listed in each individual post.

To gain a baseline of credit for participation, you must reply the main question of the week and reply to at least two other replies made by students in response to that question or the post you made. Additional credit will be given based on the quality of your replies and your engagement with the ideas in the readings and lectures. The best replies will both challenge the ideas in the readings or lectures and seek to extend them to other facets of the course.

Quizzes

Quizzes will be given weekly and are worth a total of 15% of your grade (1% for each quiz and one free percent for the Student Engagement Assignment). Quizzes are available from the time each Lecture is posted on Monday until 6pm on every Friday. Quiz content includes both readings and lectures. Any tutorials that are given each week will also be part of the quiz.

Grade Distribution

Assignment	Percentage of Grade
Midterm and Final Exams	50%
Field Writing Assignment	20%
Discussion Participation	15%
Quizzes	15%
Total	100%

Academic Honesty

Plagiarism and cheating of any kind on an examination, quiz, or assignment will result at least in an "F" for that assignment (and may, depending on the severity of the case, lead to an "F" for the entire course) and may be subject to appropriate referral to the Office of Student Conduct (http://osc.sdes.ucf.edu/faq#students) for further action. See the UCF Golden Rule (http://goldenrule.sdes.ucf.edu/) for further information. I will assume for this course that you will adhere to the academic creed of this University and will maintain the highest standards of academic integrity. In other words, don't cheat by giving answers to others or taking them from anyone else. I will also adhere to the highest standards of academic integrity, so please do not ask me to change (or expect me to change) your grade illegitimately or to bend or break rules for one person that will not apply to everyone.

Disability Statement

The University of Central Florida is committed to providing reasonable accommodations for all persons with disabilities. This syllabus is available in alternate formats upon request. Students with disabilities who need accommodations in this course must contact the professor at the beginning of the semester to discuss needed accommodations. No accommodations will be provided until the student has met with the professor to request accommodations. Students who need accommodations must be registered with Student Disability Services (http://www.sds.sdes.ucf.edu/) , Ferrell Commons, 7F, Room 185, phone (407) 823-2371, TTY/TDD only phone (407) 823-2116, before requesting accommodations from the professor.

Third-Party Software and FERPA

During this course you might have the opportunity to use public online services and/or software applications sometimes called third-party software such as a blog or wiki. While some of these could be required assignments, you need not make any personally identifying information on a public site. Do not post or provide any private information about yourself or your classmates. Where appropriate you may use a pseudonym or nickname. Some written assignments posted publicly may require personal reflection/comments, but the assignments will not require you to disclose any personally identity-sensitive information. If you have any concerns about this, please contact your instructor.

Course Schedule and Readings
