The UCF Department of Sociology is launching a new graduate student writing group that will provide a collaborative space for scholars interested in the study of race, particularly from a critical race theory perspective. The CRWG will help graduate students develop their skills in academic article writing and review processes, towards the goal of finalizing a manuscript for submission to a peer-reviewed journal.

This group is open to anyone who is interested in studying race, particularly from a CRT perspective. This is a cross-disciplinary group, so we welcome scholars from areas across UCF. For more detailed information, please visit https://sciences.ucf.edu/sociology/graduate/crwg/.
